COHIBA

Cohiba is the flagship brand for Habanos. The name is an ancient Taino Indian word for the bunches of tobacco leaves that Columbus first saw being smoked by the original inhabitants of Cuba – the earliest known form of a Habano. The brand was created in 1966 for the president Fidel Castro and since 1982 has been available in limited quantities to the public.

DAVIDOFF

A brand created in 1968 by the legendary Zino Davidoff, known as the “king of cigars”. The 1970’s saw a tremendous success for the brand, as cigar shops opened to the public all over the world selling an exceptional range of premium cigars rolled at the “Laguito” factory. All Davidoff cigars produced in Cuba were discontinued in 1991 and the brand then started to produce cigars in the Dominican Republic. In 2013 the “Nicaragua” series were released incorporating Nicaraguan tobacco into the blend.

PRE-EMBARGO

If you are lucky enough to come across cigars which are called Pre-Embargo, that's pre-1962. It was very common pre-embargo to have Cuban cigars commissioned by foreign companies as gifts or promotional products.

This cigar was made for a company called Beck Y Co in the vitola of petit corona. The tobacco is exceptional as it came from a different seed to the one planted today, so it does age and taste different.
